Professor Dr Mohammed Farashuddin, chief adviser of EWU, and former Governor of Bangladesh Bank chaired the program, while Professor Shams Rahman, vice chancellor of EWU, was the Special Guest.

Dr Maheen Islam, associate professor and chairperson of the Department of CSE of EWU gave her inaugural speech on the occasion.

In his speech, Professor Dr Muhammed Alamgir said that countries like China, Malaysia and Indonesia have progressed a lot over the last 50 years. Their talented manpower advanced their country forward.

The achievements of Bangladesh would have been better if we optimally utilized our talented people for the country's development instead of settling abroad, he added.

Therefore, Professor Alamgir urged the students to overcome the barriers and stay in their homeland for the advancement of the nation and its people.
